

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Where do I get the books to read?

You can get books wherever you normally get your books to read. Check your local library, buy them at a book store or online, download the ebook, or get them from our blogging for books program.

2. Wait, the books aren't free?

No, sorry, the books aren't free, but you can earn free books by reading five books and submitting and sharing your reviews.

3. Why aren't all of your books a part of this program?

This program is to encourage people to read some of our newer titles, and logistically we just can't include all the books we have in print.

4. My Tyndale Blog Network name and password aren't working for the log in, what can I do?

The Summer Reading Program has a different database so you'll have to sign up for a separate account. Just click on the "apply now" link on the main page, it should only take about a minute to sign up.

5. I can earn free books for reading, but what else can I get?

Well, at the end of the summer the three people who have submitted the most reviews will win $50 gift cards for books. Also, everyone that has entered at least one review in our system will be entered in a drawing to win an Amazon Kindle.

6. I live outside the US, can I still participate?

Yes.

7. What if I have a question that's not covered in this FAQ?

Feel free to contact us via our Twitter account @TyndaleHouse, or email the program coordinator Adam Sabados at adamsabados@tyndale.com.
